“Tatiana Schulte” Voyage 002 Delayed Enroute to Australia

(Morristown, NJ – February 8, 2010)...We regret to advise that the “Tatiana Schulte” voyage 002 has been denied entry into Australian waters by the Australian Quarantine and Inspection Service (AQIS). The ship had departed Auckland/New Zealand on time and was scheduled to arrive in Sydney on February 5, 2010.

We have been informed by the operator (Maersk Line) that AQIS has found “Burnt Pine Longicorn” beetles on board the ship. The beetle is native to New Zealand but considered a significant quarantine pest in Australia.

The ship was ordered out of Australian waters and is expected to arrive back in Auckland on February 8, 2010.

The ship and containers (externally only) will be fumigated in Auckland and upon completion resume her voyage. At this time we expect the fumigation to take three to five days.

We will inform you further once more detailed information is available.

We apologize for any inconvenience this schedule disruption may cause.
